Young Planning Professionals' Workshop September 9th and 11th 2016

Theme:

The Cities we Have vs. the Cities we Need

Since 1991 ISOCARP has organized – along with the annual congress – the Young Planning Professionals' workshop, intended to stimulate the professional interests and the development of planning skills of the youngest members of the planners' family. The workshop, organised by ISOCARP and the School of Built Environment and Development Studies at UKZN, will take place between September 9 and 11, 2016.

The workshop aims to provide young planners responsible for or participating in the shaping and development of urban structures, with the principles and practices of effective contemporary urbanism and practical knowledge that will be of immediate use.
